Making an application – some useful pointers

How to write a cover letter for a job application

Get the job you've always dreamed of by sending the perfect resume and cover letter. Your skills and experiences are impressive, so let your potential employers know by highlighting them in your job applications with perfect English writing. Achieve the highest level of grammar, spelling, and punctuation in your cover letter for a job application

First paragraph - why you are writing

If someone you know referred you to a potential employer, be sure to mention it! Your reader will be encouraged to keep reading when s/he sees a name she recognizes.

If you are writing in response to a job posting. Specify where you learned of the position and the title of the position. More importantly express your enthusiasm and the likely match between your credentials and position's qualifications, for example, please accept my application for post of (Enter position applying for), I am confident that my background and experience with (.....) will prove to be a suitable match for your needs.

If you are writing to enquire about a potential job opening or a prospecting letter, it is essential to write a strong paragraph that will capture your reader's attention. You must also be specific about what type of job you are seeking.

Middle paragraph(s) - what you have to offer

The middle paragraphs are your place to shine. Here you should include 1-3 focused paragraphs that highlight why you are a good candidate for a job. Illustrate how your particular abilities match specific qualifications listed in the job posting; tell about your potential for fulfilling the employer's needs in a prospecting letter. In both cases, refer to particular skills you possess and details about the organization to show you've done your research. Describe your strengths, interest, achievements, and motivation. Also, refer your reader to your resume, but do not repeat word for word what's written there. Instead, add more details that highlight your experience.

Closing paragraph - how you will follow up

After you have interested your potential employer with the first paragraphs of your cover letter for a job application, indicate how you will be in contact. Be direct in expressing your interest in a job, and indicate that you will follow up with a phone call to schedule an appointment at a mutually convenient time. Then make the call within the time frame! In some cases phone calls are prohibited or not welcome, but you should at least check that your materials were received.

The final and crucial last step in writing a cover letter for a job application is proofreading. Even with the most impressive skill set and experience, a cover letter with errors in spelling or English grammar will get limit the success of your application. An employer will doubt your intelligence and abilities if s/he reads a cover letter with mistakes.

Writing a CV

A curriculum vitae (CV) can be used when replying to adverts which say send full details or ask for a CV and when an organisation does not have an application form.

Not all employers accept CVs but if you produce one, use the following tips.

- 1 Use good quality A4 paper.
2. Limit your CV to 2 pages.
3. Stick to the same format throughout.

Writing a CV

A curriculum vitae (CV) can be used when replying to adverts which say send full details or ask for a CV and when an organisation does not have an application form.

Not all employers accept CVs but if you produce one, use the following tips.

1. Use good quality A4 paper.
2. Limit your CV to 2 pages.
3. Stick to the same format throughout.
4. It is optional to mention marital status, date of birth or nationality.
5. Highlight important information on the first page – this could be under skills or personal profile.
6. Present your employment history starting with your most recent job.
7. When describing your duties use action words such as achieved, organised, succeeded, managed, participated etc.
8. Do not leave any gaps – even if you have had a long time out of employment. You can include voluntary work and you can say you have been looking after your own children.
9. Do not fold the finished document.
10. Keep a copy and amend for each application as necessary.

Application forms

Completing the application form is the first step of the selection process. The information you give will help the employer to decide whether to shortlist you for an interview.

1. Take a photocopy or print out the form to practise on.
2. Read through all sections of the form, particularly any instructions. If completing a paper form use black ink.
3. Read the job description – this outlines the main duties of the job. Think of what interests you in the job and why.
4. Read the person specification if there is one. This will tell you what qualifications, skills and abilities you need to do the job.
5. Write a rough draft before you start filling in the form.
6. Make a list of things you are doing in your current job or have done which match these skills. Remember to add all relevant work experience including part time work in the Employment History section.
7. Use the list you have made to complete the supporting information
8. Finish with a brief summary of why you think you are suitable for this job.
9. Finally check your form for spelling and grammar.
10. Keep a copy of your completed form.
11. You will need to change your application to suit each job.
